Solano County Health & Social Services - Behavioral Health Division hopes this guide will make it easier for people who use behavioral health & wellness services, their family members, loved-ones and care providers, to access services. The listing of an individual, agency, organization, or service provider in this publication is for informational purposes only and does not express the opinion, finding, recommendation, support, or guarantee of service through Solano County Health & Social Services – Behavioral Health Division and/or the organization that may have given you this guide.

GETTING STARTED

If you know or suspect that you, a family member, or a loved one has a behavioral health concern or emotional challenge, this guide is intended to help you:

- Find services that the person with the concern or challenge needs now
- Learn about services that may be helpful in the future
- Find support for the person with the concern or challenge
- Find support for the family, loved ones, or care-provider of the person with the concern or challenge
- Be informed and prepared as you go through the process of getting behavioral health services in your community
- Know what the rights of people who have concerns or challenges are throughout the process of seeking and receiving needed services

HOW DO YOU KNOW IF YOU NEED HELP?

Everybody has ups & downs. How do you know if you or your loved one is going through a normal phase of life, or if you are seeing signs of a behavioral health concern or emotional challenge? How do you know when you should get help from a professional?

Here are some indications a behavioral health evaluation may be needed:

Younger Children

- Marked fall in school performance
- Poor grades in school, despite trying very hard
- A lot of worry or anxiety, as shown by regular refusal to go to school, go to sleep, or take part in activities normal for the child's age
- Hyperactivity – fidgety, constant movement beyond regular play
- Persistent nightmares or night terrors
- Persistent disobedience or aggression (longer than 6 months) and provocative opposition to authority figures
- Frequent unexplainable temper tantrums
- Violence to themselves, other people, or animals
- Prolonged negative mood or attitude
- Any mention of self-harm or death
- Use of alcohol or controlled substance
- Has been a victim of trauma, molestation, or significant abuse

Pre-Adolescents, Adolescents & Adults

- Marked change in school or job performance
- Inability to cope with problems and daily activities
- Marked changes in eating and sleeping habits
- Many complaints of physical ailments
- Physically or verbally attacking or threatening to attack themselves or others
- Direct opposition to authority
- Truancy, vandalism, theft – petty crimes that are escalating
- Intense fear of becoming obese with no relation to actual body weight
- Depression as shown by sustained, prolonged negative mood and/or attitude
- Thoughts or discussion of death
- Has been a victim of trauma
- Frequent outbursts of anger
- Extreme changes in personality
- Abuse of alcohol
- Use and/or abuse of controlled substance or illegal drugs

If you or your loved one is experiencing any of these symptoms you may wish to speak to your primary care physician, religious support person, or school staff about getting a referral for a behavioral health assessment. As noted in this guide, you or your loved one can call directly for a behavioral health assessment using the Behavioral Health Access Line listed on the following page.

GOOD PLACES TO START

Solano County Behavioral Health Access Line

(Call for NEW services with Solano County Behavioral Health) 1-800-547-0495

The Access line offers information on how to access treatment, counseling, and other benefits from Solano County and our contractors. You can also obtain information on claims, billing, and payments. Services are available in English and Spanish, and telephone translation services for many other languages are also available. Solano County Behavioral Health and our contracted partners offer psychiatrists, clinicians, behavioral health specialists, therapy, support groups, Wellness/Recovery Centers, and individualized services for persons of all ages. You can also ask your primary care physician, your child's teacher, or your religious support person for a referral to community-based behavioral health and wellness services.

Bay Area Community Services (BACS)

Since 1953, Bay Area Community Services (BACS) has been a leader in developing and delivering services to adults with behavioral illness, homeless adults, and frail seniors. BACS is committed to improving the health and wellness for those they serve by preventing institutional care and ending homelessness.

Preventing Engagement Program (P.E.P.)

P.E.P. is BACS' relapse prevention program, helping individuals who have experienced an acute behavioral health crisis stay in their communities. P.E.P. serves adults ages 18 and over who are experiencing their first behavioral health crisis, or who are exiting psychiatric hospitalization and need support to prevent relapse.

P.E.P. utilizes a peer-support model that employs staff with lived experience as experts in service provision, in addition to clinical staff.

P.E.P. is located in Vallejo and serves all of Solano County. Average duration of services is three months, during which time P.E.P. helps individuals by providing a variety of services, including:

- One-on-one support from a Peer Counselor immediately after discharge to help transition back into the community
- Wellness and recovery skills training to help create achievable goals, develop coping strategies, manage symptoms, and engage in community supports
- Brief individual and group counseling to help create individualized Crisis/Safety Plans for personal crisis management
- Medication monitoring and refills from BACS psychiatrist, as well as linkage to medication support clinics within the community
- Referrals and linkages to other services, as needed, within the community.

GOOD THINGS TO GET YOU GOING

There are both government and private services available to people who have behavioral health concerns or emotional challenges.

You may have to make a few phone calls to find the right services for yourself or your loved one. Some agencies have specific eligibility criteria that you must meet to receive services, so try to remember not all services are able to everyone who calls. Please be patient.

To make it easier for you to get the services you need, we have put together some ideas that others have found to be useful:

- Keep a file. Include a copy of all the letters you write, any letters you receive, tests or assessment reports, and your own notes. When you go to a meeting, write down the date, who you met with, and what happened (for example: “1/3/07 – Met with Dr. Alton to talk about side effects of medication, will lower dosage”) When you call an agency, write down the date of your call, who you talked to, and what the call was about (for example: “8/16/07 called Henry at Rehabilitation to ask about services, application is in the mail”)
- Keep a copy of everything you sign, such as applications for services, and treatment and/or service plans. Do not sign anything you have not read. It is OK to take the time to read something at a meeting. Do not sign anything you do not understand. It is OK to ask questions before you sign a document. If you do not agree with something that is written in the document you do not have to sign it. Or, you may sign the document saying you agree with one part but disagree with another part. The people asking you to sign the document must explain to you what will happen if you do not sign the document.
- Keep a written record of the names of any medications that you or your loved one is taking, the dosages, and why they are taken. Keep a copy of this list at home, keep a copy with the person who has the concern or challenge, and have the care-provider keep a copy as well. For children, the school and daycare worker or agency must have a copy also.
- Check with your doctor to see if the individual with the behavioral health concern or emotional challenge should get a medic-alert bracelet.
- Some people find it helpful to write notes on a calendar about things like brief phone calls, meeting notes, or when medication is started, changed, or stopped. You can keep track of any side effects you have had from the medications you or your loved ones are taking. You can keep track of good days/bad days, or any atypical behavior or behavioral occurrences. Keep the calendar for several years as your record of events. This is as legal a record as a journal or diary.
- When you call an agency to get services, it is helpful to know your or your loved ones behavioral health diagnosis or suspected diagnosis. It is also important to know who your treating physician or clinician is, if you have one, and to know the correct spelling of the physician or clinician’s name.
- If your loved one has a developmental disability, medical condition, or substance use issue in addition to their behavioral health concern or emotional challenge, some behavioral health agencies may try to tell you that they do not qualify for services. If the agency you are working with tries to tell you this, remind them that this is discriminatory and that it may be illegal. They must first assess your loved one to determine if he or she is eligible and in need of the services that their agency provides. The exception to this would be that an individual must be clean and sober to qualify for certain programs, but may have a (very) recent history of drug or alcohol abuse/use.

- When you apply to a public agency for services and you or your loved one are told you do not qualify for services, ask specifically what the disqualification is and ask for information about an appeals process. You can contact an advocate for assistance if you decide to file for an appeal.
- If you do not agree with the agency's decision that you or your loved one does not meet their eligibility criteria, you have the right to appeal the decision in most cases.
- When you go to a meeting, know what the meeting is about and who else will be there. Bring all of your important papers to the meeting. Write down any questions you have and anything you wish to accomplish at the meeting. Make good use of your own time and of everyone else's time as well. Make sure your questions are answered and that your points are covered before you leave the meeting. If there were concerns that you did not cover, or if there were concerns that were not resolved, schedule the next meeting (if there is one) before the key players leave the table.
- If you do not understand something that is said, either at a meeting or over the phone, ask for clarification. A lot of acronyms and jargon are used in every field and profession. Make sure you understand what is being talked about. Ask, ask, ask.
- Have a Crisis Action Plan. If you have other children or family members that you provide care for, you should have a plan ready in case you or your loved one with a behavioral health concern or emotional challenge needs to take a break or has a crisis that must be attended to. Prepare a Crisis Action Plan before you need one.

SOLANO COUNTY H&SS – BEHAVIORAL HEALTH

Solano County Health and Social Services Behavioral Health

Solano County Behavioral Health provides a wide range of services such as day treatment, residential treatment, and the Crisis Stabilization Unit (CSU). There is also medication management, short-term individual therapy, peer and family support groups, and many more individualized services.

There are many supports and services that may also be available through the agencies that Behavioral Health holds contracts with. There is no state or federal law that says a county must provide a specific type of behavioral health service. The services that you or your loved one received in another county may be different than what you will receive here in Solano County. Here is some information concerning the Solano County H&SS Behavioral Health Division that should be helpful for you:

Children's Behavioral Health Services

Children and adolescents can find great relief from treatment of a variety of symptoms and behaviors that may challenge them. Parental involvement is a key to success in treatment, and parents often find that treatment enhances their coping skills and improves their enjoyment of their children and family.

Other benefits include:

- Better social skills and relationships
- Improved school performance
- A greater feeling of self-worth
- Improved behavior in the home
- Overall improvement in family communication
- Decreased self-destructive behavior
- Greater impulse control
- Decrease in depression
- Less assaultive behavior

In addition to services provided in the Solano County Adult Behavioral Health Clinics, Caminar (a community contractor) offers services geared toward older adults.

Forensic Behavioral Health Services

The Forensic Assessment and Community Treatment (FACT) program was designed to provide treatment and supervision to severely and persistently behaviorally ill offenders as an alternative to incarceration. FACT goals are to reduce recidivism and improve the quality of life of the offenders, increase compliance with the courts and probation department, and promote recovery and wellness through independence, hope, personal empowerment, and resilience.

The Solano County Conditional Release Program (ConRep) provides community behavioral health treatment and supervision to the designated population of judicially committed individuals. This unit evaluates the behavioral health and risk to the community of clients assigned to the Health & Social Services Behavioral Health Division's Conditional Release Program.

EDUCATION: PUBLIC SCHOOLS PRE-K THROUGH GRADE 12

Students who have mental health concerns or emotional challenges may be able to receive special education services or other supports, services, and program modifications at school. Special education services include designated instruction in the classroom, home, hospital, or other institution. The student may also need related services in order to benefit from the special education program. These related services are called Designated Instructional Services (DIS) in California, and include transportation, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, assistive technology, adaptive physical education, vocational education, psychological services and more.

Children who have a disability may be eligible for special education services under a federal law called the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Eligible disabilities include, but are not limited to: sensory impairment (vision, hearing, speech/language), orthopedic impairment, low cognitive function (intellectual disability/developmental disability), emotional disturbance, autism spectrum disorder, other health impairments, or a specific learning disability.

Children who have difficulty learning, but who are not eligible for special education services under IDEA, may qualify for special services and program modifications under a federal law called Section 504 (Rehabilitation Act of 1973). Section 504 protects the rights of students who have physical or mental impairments that substantially limit their ability to learn. Students eligible for special services and program modifications under Section 504 receive accommodations or modifications to allow their educational needs to be met as adequately as the needs of students who do not have disabilities.

Laws that entitle eligible children to receive special education services or other special services and program modifications also spell out the rights of students and parents. Some of these rights are:

- Parental consent prior to an assessment.
- The right to request copies of IEP's, assessments, or any and all other educational records at any time. Requested copies must be received within 5 business-days of your request.
- The right to bring a family member, friend, or advocate to an IEP meeting with you.
- The right to an IEP on at LEAST an annual basis. A parent, teacher, or any other member of the IEP team may request an IEP to discuss a program change, to review formal assessment results, or to discuss skill development or deficit in the student.

To make a referral to special education it is best to write a letter to the child's teacher, principal, or special education coordinator. This request will start a legal timeline for services. Within 15 days you should be sent an assessment plan and a copy of your Parent/Student Rights. If you do not receive these, call your child's district office and ask if there is a specific reason for the delay. If you are very near the end of the school year or if it is over a scheduled break your school district will get back to you immediately in the next school term.

EDUCATION RIGHTS & SERVICES

If your child is receiving special education services or you are trying to obtain special education services, we encourage you to learn more about your student's educational rights and about special education law, as it pertains to your child's IEP. An excellent resource is the Special Education Rights and Responsibilities handbook by the Community Alliance for Special Education (CASE) and Disability Rights California (DRC). This handbook is available in English or Spanish. For a printed version the cost is $35.00 + $10.00 S&H for parents OR $45.00 + $10.00 S&H for professionals. For a CD version the cost is $25.00 + $4.00 S&H for parents or $35.00 + $4.00 S&H for professionals. To order, call:

DAYCARE

Solano Family & Children's Services (SFCS)

SFCS is a resource & referral agency that helps families locate daycare providers. This resource and referral agency provides support to day care providers who are interested in caring for children who have special needs. SFCS may be able to refer you to providers who have experience with children who have a specific need, such as epilepsy or a behavioral health concern. They may be able to refer you to Spanish-speaking care-providers.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME (SSI)

SSI is a program that delivers monthly benefits checks to children and adults who have disabilities if they meet Social Security's definition of disability and if their income and assets are within the eligibility limits.

According to the Social Security Administration, you are considered disabled if you have developmental, physical, or mental impairments that keep you from working and your disability is expected to last at least a year or to result in death. Children as well as adults can get SSI benefits if they are disabled. When deciding if a child is disabled, Social Security looks at how his or her disability affects every day life for children of the same age.

Whether you can get SSI also depends on what you own and how much income you have. Income is money you have coming in, such as wages, Social Security checks, and pensions. Income may also be non-cash items such as food, clothing, or shelter, including if these are purchased for you by another person.

If you are married, Social Security looks at the income of your spouse and the things he or she owns. If you're applying for SSI for someone who is under 18, Social Security also looks at the income of the parents and the things they own.

The things you own that Social Security considers income include items such as real estate, personal belongings, bank accounts, cash, stocks, and bonds. A person may be able to get SSI with items worth up to $2000. A couple may be able to get SSI with items worth up to $3000.

Social Security does not count everything you own. For example:

- The home you live and the land it is on, do not count
- Your personal and household goods and life insurance policies may not count, depending on their size
- One car you own usually does not count
- Burial plots for you and members of your immediate family do not count
- Up to $1500 in burial funds for you and up to $1500 in burial funds for your spouse may not count
- If you are blind or have a disability, some items may not count if you plan to use them for work or to gain extra income

The amount of SSI you receive can depend on where you live, whether or not you are married, or if you are applying for SSI benefits for a minor. To find out how much SSI you may be eligible to receive, contact Social Security.

IN-HOME SUPPORTIVE SERVICES

In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS) pays a worker to perform tasks for children and adults who have mental health concerns or other disabilities, or seniors. Recipients of IHSS services must also receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI). In some instances IHSS is available to people who are eligible for, but are not currently receiving SSI.

Depending on the needs of the person, IHSS can provide domestic services (cleaning, cooking, laundry, shopping), personal care services (bathing, dressing, helping to eat, bowel and bladder care), transportation to doctor's appointments, paramedical services (giving injections, with supervision), and protective supervision (to prevent injuries, hazards, and accidents).

IHSS conducts an assessment to determine which functions of daily living one cannot do for themselves. The assessment will determine the number of IHSS hours per month the individual will receive. If the individual disagrees with the number of hours they are allotted, they can file an appeal to show why certain tasks require more time to complete.

Spouses and parents of minor children needing IHSS can be paid to provide IHSS with certain restrictions. They are paid only for services which must be provided because the spouse or child is disabled. They will not be paid for services a parent or spouse normally provides, such as cleaning or cooking. Parents can be paid for all IHSS services an eligible adult child needs. Spanish-speaking staff are available; staff can access translators for other languages.

MEDI-CAL

Medi-Cal is California's public health insurance program. This program pays for a variety of medical services for children and adults with limited income and resources. Medi-Cal is supported by federal and state taxes. Anyone can apply for Medi-Cal benefits regardless of sex, race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, marital status, age, disability, or veteran status. If you are found (or determined) to be eligible, you can get Medi-Cal as long as you continue to meet the eligibility requirements. Your County Social Services Department manages Medi-Cal eligibility determinations.

People in many different situations qualify for Medi-Cal. You may automatically be eligible for Medi-Cal if you receive cash assistance under one of the following programs:

- Supplemental Security Income / Supplemental Security Program (SSI/SSP)
- California Work Opportunity and Responsibility to Kids (CalWORKS)
- Refugee Assistance
- Foster Care or Adoption Assistance Program

Even if you do not receive cash assistance, you may be eligible for Medi-Cal.

You must be a resident of California to get Medi-Cal.

You may get the Medi-Cal application on-line. You may also go to your local Social Services office in person, or you may mail your application and your required verification (proof) to your local office. If you need help with filling out your application you may ask any one you would like to help you; a friend, a family member, or a co-worker. If you do not have all of your verification or you are not sure what you need, go ahead and mail in or file your application. The Social Services agency will tell you what else you need. The sooner Social Services receives your application, the sooner your case can be processed, and the sooner your Medi-Cal benefits can begin.

Forty-five (45) days are allowed to process applications for people without disabilities. Ninety (90) days are allowed to process applications for people with disabilities. There are different rules for Emergency Medi-Cal and some special programs.

If you feel you are disabled, tell Medi-Cal on your application and let your eligibility worker know this when you bring in your application. There are certain criteria you must meet to receive Medi-Cal based on disability. You must have a severe developmental, physical, and/or mental problem(s) which will last at least 12 months and keep you from working during these 12 months, or that will possibly result in death.

You must prove your disability. Proof may involve obtaining medical records, tests, and other medical findings.

Please go to the Medi-Cal website or speak with your eligibility worker for more specific information.

VOCATIONAL SERVICES – DEPARTMENT OF REHABILITATION

The State Department of Rehabilitation (DOR) provides services to people who have a developmental, physical, mental, or emotional disability to get a job or keep the job they have. Types of services available from the DOR include, but are not limited to:

- Job training, books, or training supplies to learn needed skills for an appropriate job
- Transportation
- Tools, equipment, and licenses for you to go work
- Reader, interpreter, and note-taking services
- Telecommunications, sensory and other technological aids and devices
- Rehabilitation engineering services to customize and adapt equipment and devices
- Supported employment services if you need a “coach” on your worksite to help you learn and keep your job
- Job Seeking Skills - training to learn the skills necessary to get a job
- Initial stock and supplies for those placed in small business
- Other goods and services needed to get a job
- Placement in a job
- Follow-up on the job to make sure you and your employer are satisfied

Some of these services may be based on your ability to pay. Outside benefits are used when available. The DOR has an evaluation process to determine if an individual is eligible for their services. In most cases, the DOR will decide within 60 days of your application for services if you are eligible to receive services.

INDEPENDENT LIVING RESOURCE CENTERS

Independent Living Centers provide a variety of services to help people with any type of disability to achieve maximum independence. The majority of staff and board members at the Independent Living Centers are people who have disabilities. Services are free.

Types of services available from an Independent Living Center include:

- Benefits Advocacy: Information, referral, intervention, and representation for people who are having difficulty with benefits programs such as Supplemental Security Income (SSI), In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS), Medi-Cal, The Department of Rehabilitation (DOR), etc...
- Systems Advocacy and Community Education: Advocacy activities which preserve or strengthen the rights of persons who have disabilities.
- Housing Assistance and Advocacy: Assist people to locate, secure, and maintain accessible and affordable housing.
- Peer Counseling and Support: Supports the emotional needs of people who have disabilities through counseling or one-on-one peer support.
- Personal Assistance Services: Training and referral of personal assistants who perform personal care and homemaking services. Training and informational services for people who have disabilities to help people successfully employ personal assistants.

- Independent Living Skills: Training and assistance to help people develop individualized skills and knowledge to encourage maximum independence in areas such as money & household management, menu planning & shopping, and personal hygiene & self-care.
- Information and Referral: Help to assess individual needs and match these needs with the appropriate resources in the community.
- Spanish speaking staff available.

REGIONAL CENTERS

Regional Centers provide case management and other services for people who have an intellectual or developmental disability (ID or DD). North Bay Regional Center (NBRC) serves Napa, Solano, and Sonoma counties.

To be eligible for services from NBRC, an individual must have an ID/DD or be at high risk of developing an ID/DD, and be a resident of Napa, Solano, or Sonoma County. A mental health diagnosis by itself does not qualify a person to receive services from North Bay Regional Center. He or she must also have an ID/DD. You can have both an ID/DD and a mental health concern or emotional challenge. You then have the right to obtain services for both your ID/DD and your mental health concern or emotional challenge.

An ID/DD is defined in state law as a disability which occurs before the individual reaches the age of 18 years old, is expected to continue indefinitely, and which constitutes a substantial handicap. ID/DD include cognitive impairment, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism, and disabling conditions closely related to cognitive impairment or requiring similar treatment to that required for individuals with cognitive impairment.

SENIOR'S SERVICES

How to Apply for Medicare

If you do not get Social Security and ONLY want to get Medicare benefits you may do so. If you are close to age 65 and not receiving Social Security benefits you must apply for Medicare. You can apply by visiting your local Social Security office or by calling the Social Security 800 number. You should apply three months before the month of your 65th birthday. You cannot apply for Medicare on the internet.

If you already get Social Security Benefits you will not need to do anything. You will automatically be enrolled in Medicare Part A & B effective the month you turn 65. Your Medicare card will be mailed to you 3 months prior to your 65th birthday. If you do not want Medicare Part B follow the directions on the back of the card.

If you want to apply for both Social Security retirement benefits and Medicare, and you are close to age 65 and are not yet getting Social Security benefits or Medicare, you can apply for both at the same time. To make sure that your Medicare Part B coverage start date is not delayed, you should apply three months before the month of your 65th birthday.

To apply visit your local Social Security office or call Social Security:

DEALING WITH A CRISIS

Sometimes it is hard to decide when a situation has crossed the line from being very difficult to being a crisis. At other times, it may be very clear that a person who has a mental health concern or emotional challenge is in a crisis.

How do you know if a loved one is facing a crisis? When you are unsure, here are some things to consider when deciding if you should seek assistance from crisis or emergency services:

- Is the person an imminent danger to himself or other people?
- Has there been a sudden or dramatic change for the worse (how quickly did the situation develop) or conversely, did the person suddenly become very happy (elated) or content after a period of sadness or depression?
- Do you or other care-providers feel able to deal with the present situation? Or are you too worn down to handle the situation?
- If you think you are having a crisis, you probably are.

If the person who has mental health concern or emotional challenges is a danger to themselves or others, or the people with him or her cannot handle the situation, call 911 for help.

If you think the situation has become a crisis, you can call Solano County's Crisis Stabilization Unit or other appropriate crisis services available in your community to get support. Emergency services are available through Solano County Behavioral Health and other community agencies, or by calling the police or 911.

Solano County Behavioral Health Crisis Stabilization Unit (CSU)

In Fall of 2014, Solano County began to serve its consumers with a new county-wide Crisis Stabilization Unit, under the auspices of Exodus Recovery, Inc. Over the last several years, consumers and family members had been asking for a place for those in a behavioral health crisis that understands what a behavioral health crisis is, and that could offer help in a timely and compassionate manner. The time is finally here, and that place is the Solano County CSU.

The Exodus team's goal is to facilitate rapid resolution of behavioral health crises for consumers aged 5 and up. Always open, it is a safe, bright, calm environment in which individuals can stabilize and return to their home or the least restrictive environment possible, as quickly as possible. Unlike an emergency department, this unit is entirely focused on behavioral health issues and Wellness and Recovery, and it has the resources to connect people with the services, supports, and medications they may need. It is designed to care for the well-being of any person with a behavioral health issue, in an effort to avert a hospital stay. However, if the hospital stay is a necessary part of treatment the Exodus Team will facilitate that as well.

The Exodus Recovery mission is to bring the tools for the best possible quality of life to clients. Their concept of total health care incorporates the physical, emotional, and spiritual needs of each client. Exodus's program strives to create an environment which promotes the dignity of all participating and to develop services maximizing clients' self-determination.

As per California Code of Regulations, Title 22, Division 5, Chapter 1, Article 7, Section 70707 and the American Hospital Association, all clients shall have rights without regard to sex, race, ethnicity, age, disability, sexual preference, ability to pay, religion, education, or the source of payment.

INVOLUNTARY COMMITMENTS

There is a state law called the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act (LPS) which enables a person to be committed to a Behavioral Health facility against their will if they are a danger to themselves or others, or if they are gravely disabled. "Gravely Disabled" is defined as "a condition in which the person, as the result of a mental disorder, is unable to provide for his or her own basic personal needs, for food, clothing or shelter". The sections of LPS that specifically addresses involuntary commitments are section 5150 (72-hour hold) and section 5250 (14-day hold).

People who are committed to a Behavioral Health facility have specific rights, even when they are involuntarily committed. Among these rights are:

- The right to a written notice that details why you are being held
- The right to an evaluation by the facility of your medical, psychological, educational, social, financial, and legal situation
- The right to accept or refuse to take psychotropic or neuroleptic medications. A doctor must give you written and verbal information about the effects and side effects of the medications. You may be given medication involuntarily if there is a specifically defined emergency or if it is determined in a hearing by a hearing officer or judge that you do not have the ability to make a decision about taking your own medications at the time
- The right to a hearing within four days of your commitment to determine if you can continue to be held
- The right to file an appeal in the California court system if you lose your hearing

Whether a commitment to a Behavioral Health facility is voluntary or involuntary, all people, at all times, have the right to be free from harm.

ADVOCACY & SUPPORT RESOURCES

Solano County Behavioral Health Patients' Rights Advocates

Patients' Rights Advocates serve individuals who are in any locked or secured facility. You can call the Patients' Rights Advocate if you have questions about your rights as a patient/consumer, or if you believe your rights have been violated. You have certain rights that cannot be waived by your parent(s), guardian(s), or conservator if you are or were a psychiatric patient and are now in one of the following facilities:

- State Hospital
- Acute Psychiatric Hospital
- Skilled Nursing Facility (SNF)
- Institute for Behavioral Disease (IMD)

If you are a psychiatric patient and/or live in one of the above facilities, you cannot be denied the right to:

- Wear your own clothes, as appropriate to each program
- Keep your personal possessions, as appropriate to each program
- Keep and spend a reasonable amount of your own money for small purchases
- Have ready access to letter writing material, including stamps
- Use the phone at an appropriate time
- See visitors
- Receive your mail unopened
- Have private storage space

You cannot be denied these rights unless there is "good cause." Punishment, discipline, or staff convenience do not constitute "good cause." A denial can be made only by the person authorized by law or regulation to do so, and must be noted in your treatment record. Your rights must be restored as soon as the cause for denial no longer exists.

Solano County Health & Social Services Information & Referral Center ~ Dial 211

Information and Referral is a service provided by professional, friendly benefits specialists through Solano County Health & Social Services. Each call is evaluated to make the referral or connections as pleasant as possible. The person answering the phone will provide you with information, answer your questions, and connect you with your needed resource. English and Spanish speaking benefits specialists are available. Other languages are available through the telephone interpretive service. 211 can help you find:

- Shelter
- Anger management classes
- Emergency food
- Parenting classes
- Wheelchairs, strollers, car seats, or helmets
- Someone to help you if you feel suicidal or depressed
- Health care coverage
- Information on starting a daycare or finding child care
- Help for an elderly or disabled person
- Information on becoming a foster parent or guardian
- Help for someone with a substance abuse problem

Additionally, you can call 211 to report:

- An unsanitary restaurant
- Mold in your building
- A dead animal on the road
- Garbage piling up in the neighborhood
- Problems with rodents or other pests

If you have a question, 211 has the answer. If they don't have the answer, they will research the question and get back to you in a timely manner.

Support Groups - Solano County Behavioral Health

All Groups are facilitated by County staff. All groups are free and strictly confidential. There is limited curriculum, so individuals may start and stop any group at any time. We facilitate traditional "share-n-care" formats, where members are able to share about what is happening in their lives while the facilitator and members offer caring support that may benefit the individual. No one is obligated to share. Groups are offered at five locations and at various times to accommodate as many schedules as possible. You may contact Rachel E. Ford, Consumer Affairs Liaison, by phone at 707-553-5735 or by email at REFord@solanocounty.com for any questions or concerns.
